

NOTICE

NEW TAXA DESCRIPTIONS: LATIN OR ENGLISH, IT IS YOUR CHOICE

At the Nomenclatural Section of the XVIII International Botanical Congress, Melbourne, Australia, 18 - 22 July 2011, the congress voted to allow English to be used as an alternative language for producing valid descriptions and diagnoses of new taxa of organisms covered by the International Code of Botanical Nomenclature (to be renamed International Code of Nomenclature for algae, fungi and plants). Commencing on Jan. 1, 2012, either English or Latin can be used to provide a description or diagnosis for new taxa.

In accordance with these changes Phytologia will adhere to the new standards and accept either English or Latin for the description or diagnosis for new taxa beginning with this issue:

Phytologia 94(1): 147 (April 2, 2012).

Robert P. Adams, Editor
Phytologia
Robert_Adams@baylor.edu